WAR ON DISEASE

Washington, Oct. 9.—Out of the forty-second international sanitary conference of American republics, which began in the New Willard Hotel today, will grow a movement for a worldwide league of governments against communicable diseases. The co-operation between the governments of the western hemisphere has proved so effective in combating dangerous epidemics that international sanitary conferences participated in by all countries are now considered as necessary as international peace conferences.

Nearly every American government was represented when Surgeon General William C. Woodworth and Marine Hospital Service called the convention to order this morning. He said he felt no doubt the good results of the conference held two years ago would appear in the reports of the delegates to this conference. He described as an instance the manner in which the United States and Mexico co-operated to prevent in 1905 a recurrence of the yellow fever epidemic, which made its appearance in 1902.

Dr. Licena of the Superior Board of Health of Mexico, who worked with Dr. Wyman at that time, is Mexico's representative in the present conference.

Secretary of State Root, who welcomed the delegates and extended to them the good wishes of the United States for the success in all their efforts, said: "It is the wish of the United States to forward the work of peace and harmony among all peoples. I do not know that the average intellect among men is any more powerful than it was one thousand years ago, but a concentration of effort makes possible what would not have been possible a few generations ago. You, therefore, can accomplish more than did your predecessors."

Gambling Among Society Women

The mania for gambling among the society women of today is steadily increasing. If a pack of cards is not at hand money is wagered on any chance occurrence, and is lost and won accordingly, and the card-rooms in the hotels of the numerous summer resorts are filled each afternoon with an excited feminine, with occasionally a few masculine, party and high stakes are played for. Women are born with a natural instinct for gambling, as is shown in both French and English history. With some it is merely a pastime; with others, in craving for excitement, and pleasure in gambling, while for the most part it is indulged in for the greed of gain, and the money that is in it. There are many Philadelphia women who dress themselves entirely from their successful playing of poker or bridge. In the days of Louis XV Mme. du Barry was the most famous woman gambler of the time, but with her it was only a pastime. But Mme. de Pompadour went in with the sole object of winning, if she could. It is recorded that her winnings were enormous and that in a single night she eased the pockets of the King of 25,000 louis d'or.

Queen Marie Antoinette, according to history, was a gambler who liked to be surrounded by gamblers. Faro was the popular game, but the stakes got to be so great that many a nobleman had his entire estates wiped out in a single night. Scandal rose high and the game was forbidden.

Possibly the most famous woman gambler of English history was Nell Gwynne, the actress, who was so great a favorite with Charles II. In that reign the manners were much the same as they were at the French court. Nell Gwynne lost £5,000 to her rival, the Duchess of Cleveland, and in one year lost upwards of £20,000, which the King paid. There had never been known so much gambling among women as was carried on in that reign. After the Duchess of Mazarin, niece of the Cardinal, had lost $5,000,000 she died in absolute want.

The acknowledged queen of American women gamblers was Lonna Poquita, who was born in Texas fifty years ago, but early went into Mexico to rule over outlaws and cowboys. The little Lonna was scarcely 12 years of age when she fell in with an old-time gambler named Quileter, who taught her every trick known to the gambler's art.

There were many people who thought it was merely luck that followed her, but the luck kept up too long, and the gamblers who knew a few tricks themselves understood that it was "art." Still, no one was ever known to catch her cheating. Before she was 20 Lonna Poquita was in New Mexico leading a gang of the worst character of the Southwest.

The women of today, although they doubtless gamble as heavily as in other times, incline more to speculation in stocks. The new woman will go on gambling, but appearances show that she cares a great deal more for the money there is in it than she does for the notoriety of being a gambler.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 8.—Officials of Spanish War Veterans today learned that it would be impossible for them to obtain control of Lincoln's birthplace, as its owner, R. J. Collier, of New York, had decided to present it to the Federal Government for a national park. The veterans are satisfied with this arrangement, as they had intended, if they got hold of the property, to use it for a similar purpose, but under their own management.

Suggestions For The Housewife

Spirits of wine, rubbed in well with a clean cloth, will remove all stains on white leather belts.

To keep parsley shut it up in an air tight tin and store it in a cool place. It will last longer thus than if put in water.

When tarnished gold and silver embroidery may be brightened by being rubbed with flannel dipped in spirits of wine.

The ordinary cake blacking mixed with a little milk makes a fine polish for shoes and prevents the leather getting hard and cracking.

After cutting onions, hold the knife and your fingers under running cold water. This will quickly remove the onion juice, which hot water would cause to stick.

To produce an abundant growth in house plants water the plants once every week with lukewarm water with the addition of a few drops of ammonia to each pint.

Piano keys can be cleaned as any old ivory by being rubbed with muslin dipped in alcohol. If very yellow use a piece of flannel moistened with cologne water.

When washing a white silk blouse add a little methylated spirits to the last rinsing water. This will add brightness to the silk, and will make it more easy to iron nicely.

To polish tortoise-shell combs first rub with finely powdered charcoal mixed with water, and then with prepared chalk, moistened with vinegar. Polish with the palm of the hand and dry chalk.

Possible Explanation.

She—Why are you so strongly opposed to all games of chance?
He—I don't know unless it's because I am married.

Railway Legislation Is The Chief Issue

Washington, Oct. 9.—President Roosevelt will make railroad legislation the chief issue in his message to Congress in December. He will not push tariff revision with any insistence, subordinating it to the traffic measure, for the reason that he believes it would be important to get sufficient public opinion back of two such important issues at the same time. Enough conferences have been held by President Roosevelt and other influential advisers to make this reasonably clear.

Since last year the President's view on the railroad rate question has assumed much more definite shape, so that his friends will go into the contest with a distinct knowledge of what is desired. Nevertheless it is probable that he will leave the boundary lines of the desired legislation somewhat vague in his message and other official documents.

The use of milk of lime for quickly and effectively extinguishing fires in coal mines is recommended by Inspector Wolfgang Kummer, a German.

Books, Bookish People and Things

Dr. B. Scheube, whose writings on diseases of warm countries have won such a deservedly high place, says of the effects of a tropical climate on the nervous system:

"The unfavorable effects of tropical climates on the nervous system are still further increased if contributed to by other predisposing causes, such as heredity, excesses, etc."

"Rudimentary or fully developed mental derangements may then ensue. Mental diseases therefore are more frequent in Europeans in the tropics than in temperate climates."

"This influence is principally manifested in sleeplessness and irritability. Such patients exhibit boundless excitement, to which they formerly were not subject, so that they are carried away to perform acts of violence and other unpremeditated deeds; such explosions as a rule are followed by exhaustion."

In many cases it would be better if they were followed by death. No doubt charity should be exercised towards those really suffering from an excess of nervous irritability due to climate, and the best thing for them to do would be to get out of the climate that is making them so disagreeable."

Another writer on tropical diseases calls this form of explosion so common among certain residents in tropical countries "frantic mania." He says that these patients cannot be crossed; to be beaten in a game or an argument drives them wild; any small matter which they consider an "insult" (whether it be so or not) to themselves or families may, especially if it be mixed with a little whiskey, make demons of them.

My opinion is that the "disease" is merely enlarged easiness.

Mense says very truly of this "tropical frenzy" which assaults respectable men, accuses good characters, throws mud, sets fire to annoying servants and kills provoking laborers at the slightest provocation:

"The alleged disorder has been expressly fabricated by laymen according to whether the affected persons are governed by pleasure or hatred. There are, relatively, a great many eccentric characters among Europeans living in the far distant colonies, for the quiet ordinary man prefers to remain in his comfortable native land. The opportunity is afforded to the weak characters to lose their equilibrium. In Europe they are under the stern eye of the law, and of society, and custom compels limitations to one's conduct. The same type of persons who suffer from the so-called tropical frenzy in the colonies are inclined to excesses everywhere, even at the North Pole, as soon as the 'straight jacket' of civilization is removed."

Good for Mense, for he tells nothing but the truth.

When it is not bad whiskey that all the man it is bad temper, bad blood or all combined with too much authority.

Large authority or arbitrary power is a dangerous thing even for a man of large mental calibre and enough character, but to give a man of small intellectual development and unstable character such power is to make him a menace to the community.

The smaller the man the less it takes to make him strut. It may be only three servants to lord it over. As he looks back to the time when he was serving himself his figure reflects itself large on the horizon. Or, may be, he rules a hundred or a thousand and, accordingly, his objectionable dominance grows.

In a late issue of "The Beautiful Woman" (Julia Mays Pub. Co., New York), Mrs. Frank Leslie discusses the "Society Man." Notwithstanding her intimate experiences with several, the Baroness declares him to be "not so bad as he's painted" which is really very good of the Baroness.

"Frenchmen, Spaniards and Italians, with their various race branches, are, as a rule, very agreeable men to encounter in society, but they have literally no appreciation of that uncompromising sincerity which is the boast of the Saxon race."

"With a man of the Latin race a spade may be called almost anything but a spade, and he takes it for granted that if he calls it a moonbeam you know perfectly well that it isn't one."

"The mixture of nationalities," she says of Washington society, "in the diplomatic circles, the infinite sense of freedom and irresponsibility always felt by men away from their homes and usual ties and the determination to have a 'good time' with which young women visit our gay capital, all conduce to a very mixed and somewhat lawless tone of social affairs, and few women returning home after a Washington season fail to bring a budget of adventures."

This is Mrs. Leslie's experience, no doubt.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Governmental experiments into the process of cane syrup-making have been brought to a successful conclusion and Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture today ordered the sale of the Government factory, which was built at Waycross, Ga., three years ago. This plant was established for the purpose of giving a course of study to cane syrup manufacturers of the Gulf States.

The South African gold mines have recovered from the effects of the Boer War, as shown by the output for July—$9,031,250, against $8,604,000 in Aug., 1899 (the highest record before the war).

Newbro's Herpicide

The ORIGINAL remedy that "kills the Dandruff Germ." A "HAIR-SAVER" that grows in popularity. DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS LOADED. Most young and middle-aged men never know that their scalps are loaded with microbic growths until the hair has "gone off." Nature sends her warnings of dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair but the discovery of the dandruff germ is too recent for the public to realize the danger of neglect. Newbro's Herpicide positively destroys the dandruff microbe; stops falling hair and protects the scalp against reinfection. A delightful hair dressing. Stops itching instantly. Its immense popularity proves its goodness. Save your hair while you have hair to save.
